

Tax Character of Distributions

The estimated tax character of distributions from Oaktree Specialty Lending Corporation (the “Company”) is set forth below. For tax purposes, the Company is a regulated investment company (“RIC”) and is permitted to designate the portion of distributions paid that consist of interest-related dividends (also referred to as qualified interest income, or “QII”) and short-term capital gains which are thus exempt from U.S. withholding tax when paid to non-U.S. shareholders with proper documentation.

The distributions listed below have been tentatively identified as including QII that is exempt from U.S. withholding tax based on the RICs year-to-date activity. Please note that these are estimates, and the designation may change based on subsequent events. As the final designation is determined based on the total taxable income of the RIC, this percentage cannot be confirmed until after the close of the tax year. Please consult your tax advisor for further information.
